

Zipper Dictionary

1-Way Separating: Zipper comes completely apart (like a jacket front) and has one pull on it.

2-Way Separating: Zipper comes completely apart with two pulls on it (one zips up from the bottom).

Non-Separating: Only one end of the zipper can come apart (like a fly zipper).

Reversible: The zipper pull has tabs on both sides for sleeping bags, tents and reversible garments.

Zipper Tape: Continuous zipper sold by the foot. Cannot be used in separating applications (at least one end must stay together). Particularly useful for tents, pockets, luggage, packs and pillowcases

Pocket Zippers: Specialized 7" long, #2.5 coil zippers that are fastened together permanently at both ends. Useful for pockets although non-separating zippers or zipper tape may also be used.

Locking Pulls: Will not slide on the zipper unless the pull-tab is grasped. Good for fly zippers as well as some garment pockets and neck zippers.

Non-Locking Pulls: Do not have a locking pin inside and will slide without grabbing the pull-tab. Used for tents, packs, most luggage, and many pockets.
